Cold

I imagine like most people when it comes to Valentine's Day one of the very first things that pops into your mind is "mold". No?

Well, as sales records for cards and chocolate and roses and maybe even chocolate roses prepare to be broken, Valentine's Day is also a good holiday for us to celebrate mold. Not just any kind of mold, but a specific kind of mold that has saved countless lives for more than 70 years.

On February 14, 1929, Sir Alexander Fleming formally introduced to the world his moldy by-product known as penicillium notatum or the more common name: penicillin.

Before the use of penicillin a person could die from a bacterial infection that started with nothing more than a scratch. Many people did die from such infections. Penicillin prevents bacteria from forming new cell walls so the bacteria can't keep growing.

About 2,000 years ago there was a church in a place called Ephesus.

The folks there were doing some really good things, but Jesus ran a quick test on their hearts and the results were not good. They had abandoned their first love and their hearts had grown cold.

The love that they had for Jesus used to be the most satisfying love in their lives, but some kind of bacteria got in and it started building new walls and before long the joy of their salvation was no longer what they enjoyed the most.

In the Disney movie Frozen Queen Elsa of Arendelle gave a sad and scary confession of the condition of her heart when she sang, "The cold never bothered me anyway."

There's never a bad time for a good dose of spiritual penicillin. So, get the chocolate roses, but also be sure to warm your heart by the fires of the gospel so that on Valentine's Day and every other day your first love will be your best love because there is no greater love than Christ's love.

Thank You!

Lynn and I were always encouraged by all the expressions of your love during his illness - the prayers lifted up, the encouraging words whether spoken or written, the many visits with us at home and the hospitals, the meals prepared, the yard work done, and the flowers delivered. Since his death I am still being encouraged and blessed daily. And for all you do, I say thank you.

I will never forget the amazing tribute to Lynn during his service - the wearing of bowties. What an honor to a life well lived in love and service to His Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

I love you, my friends, and pray God's blessings on each one.
